As regards the actual agreements entered into by Mr Burlingame, there is one to which we might profitably draw attention. The "Consul" clause in which England and Russia are so particularly noted, is so palpable an attempt to impose upon Hongkong and Kiochita a "Chinese Consul," that it should scarcely be overlooked. There are, no doubt, many Yankee "citizens" in the Customs Service who would particularly enjoy holding such an appointment. But as we hold that all Chinese in Hongkong are pro tem. British subjects, the introduction of so objectionable an official can well be dispensed with. If Lord Stanley should intend contemplating signing a similar agreement on behalf of Great Britain, there will, of course, be no means of avoiding the infliction. But there can be no good purpose served by such a step being taken, much as the Tribune would doubtless like to see another citizen in a position so influential for worrying "the Britishers." This would be another instance doubtless of American "common sense and fair dealing." It would give a little more prominence to the Inspector General of Customs, but would not materially advance the good understanding between Great Britain and China, so that we trust the "fair dealing" in question will be turned to some other object. There is need of it somewhere.

LOCAL.

We have to acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt of Mr. J. Ross Brown's work on the mining districts of California, to which we shall shortly refer. We have also similarly to acknowledge a "set of tables showing the bearing of the Chinese Customs Tariff of 1858 on the trade of 1866 and 1867." They are well got up, but we have not yet had an opportunity of examining them.

SUPPOSED SUICIDE.

A Chinaman was found dead in the Tai-pingshan Gap Street yesterday morning, with a cord tightened round his neck, of whom very little can be learned. He appears to be a man of about 20 years of age, and has most probably been a coolie in Yokohama. It is said that he has been frequently seen about the gambling-houses, and a cause for his death under the peculiar circumstances may thus be found. If, as it would seem probable, the result of going inside a gambling-house is either disappointment, crime or suicide, the Europeans who are now forbidden to enter may well consider themselves. An inquest was held yesterday before Mr Stewart, and the jury returned a verdict of suicide. Some European have recently missed servants somewhat suddenly; the suicide may be one of these.

We take the following paragraph from the Japan Herald:

"COOLIES IN HAWAII.—By the Japan Herald we have files of the Hawaiian Gazette, which has the following respecting the Japanese labourers recently exported to the Hawaiian Islands. The vessel arrived from Japan on the 10th of June, with one hundred and forty-seven men and six women, immigrants to serve as labourers, under an engagement made by the Hawaiian Consul at Japan. This being the first arrival of the kind, and the precursor of others to follow, the people of the Islands were rejoicing greatly, as there is, it seems, a demand for labourers there. They were quickly engaged by different planters. They were not brought as coolies, but as free men, to better their condition, the Consul only engaging on the part of the Hawaiian Government, that the Japanese should have employment at fair wages, and protection in their rights. They left their country with consent of their Daimios under engagement for three years. This is the first instance in which Japanese have been allowed to leave for a residence in foreign lands. They are to receive four dollars per month and food, lodging, and medical attendance, and to enjoy all the privileges guaranteed to other foreigners on the islands. So much for the erroneous statements and false comparisons of this exportation of free labour with the abominable coolie traffic of Macao."

CORRESPONDENCE.

MR. BURLINGAME'S SPEECH.

SHANGHAI, 6th September, 1868.
Sir, I should like to know what were the sensations of the Japanese General as he pursued the speech of the Ambassador of China, at the mayor of New York's dinner. My idea is, they were somewhat analogous to those of a quack doctor as he listens to the effusions of his Merry Andrew. The state of things in China is rotten. The porcelain jar was broken in 1842 and the core was found to be mud. Interested parties have cried up the fragments as fine China. It takes now, however, more than this to make a man believe in the superiority quality of the article. The mark is too flimsy and coarse for close inspection, so the point is laid out thick and boldly that close at a distance may applaud. There these victims are snubbed and told to hold their tongues, that exposure may be avoided. The merchants of Shanghai well know the fustiness of the existing position of affairs, and the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce is not unaware of it. An advance is being made towards obtaining their connivance. Let them meet it, by all means, should they judge it to be for their interest. But I say to them, be not deceived by a shadow. Make sure that you shall participate in the spoil. Lay knew (too well for himself) of the mud. He calculated on being able to wade through it, and led by him, China might have been short cut to a bright future. He over-reached himself a little, but who can say but that he would have succeeded had he not been tripped up. It must be borne in mind, the Literature in China does not contain an Epic. Not a noble thought, no singleness of purpose animates a Chinaman's breast. Foreign writers (students of the language of course) have written in praise of Chinese science, of Chinese civilization. Small indeed has been the result of the efforts, a very few grains and husks of husks. Alas! Chinese science and civilization must, I fear, put with the "have beens." What are their boasted Classics? Dr Legge has, with all his learning, his industry, and his ability shown them to be little more than bosh, and a collection of platitudes. Their antiquity entitles them, I am told, to respect, but few let them be judged as antiques. Requiescent in pace. An able writer, on civilization has, in one of his books, drawn a somewhat invidious comparison between a London gent fresh landed in Shanghai and not with a saucy tea-boy but with his young office teacher, (whose intelligence is however unequal to comprehending the machinery of a door-lock), greatly to the annoyance of the latter. Let us make some allowance for the writer having taken the typical pro magnifico, and pardon him the typical to our race. The Chinese argument as we are, deteriorated by the circumstances under which for the last few centuries they have multiplied. Let us take the best specimen of a man—a thoughtful industrious man—that their civilization can produce, and judge of the result, side by side, with a member of a European University, and ask the talented writer on civilization whether one be not as vigorous, manly, and a soldier of Truth as the other is mean, servile and grovelling. Such in my humble opinion is a fair picture of European and Chinese civilization. What a bright idea it was to arm the subtle Chinaman with a translation of Wheaton's International Law! What an exemplification of British consistency! To the barbarians our warriors present armistices; to the semi-barbarical our envoys offer a Trattato on International Law. When an Armstrong is given to a savage, what is his thought? Why to avail himself of the force and power placed in his hands to give momentum to his savageries. Such is Wheaton in the Chinaman's hands. He is told that if he can ever touch one of those foreign Ministers whom he so hates with a dictum of Wheaton, the hit will be acknowledged. So he studies Wheaton, his only thought being how he can avail himself of a work of whose structure he is about as ignorant as the wild man is of the Armstrong.

China wants vigor. The only vigor in her constitution at present is that springing from her foreign employers. One of the highest of whom, for the good of the Empire of course (I), is enacting the part of bear leader and a sort of superior Barman to a couple of Champagne-drinking minor officials, while another, who is thought to be the master spirit in working out his deep-laid plans at his heart and doing what he can to make the world believe that certain wolves and goats in Mandarin costume are veritable lions. Who is he that believes Mr. Hart to be a Quixote? Adventurers, make your little games. There's a good time coming. The net can't hold all the haul. Pickings there will be to be had. There is, I fear, no hope for the Millions of China till Chinamen, with the will and the power to carry his words into effect, shall arise and shall utter a paraphrase of those words of a famed Emperor of old "Cessant rapaces jam nunc officium manus; cessant, inquam; nam si mouit non cessavit, gladius proceditur. Then let the adventurers and the mercenaries look to themselves, for their game will then be nearly played out. Let us hope this time may not be long in coming.

Yours faithfully,
AUGUR.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

By the courtesy of Captain Castle of the steamer Nymph, we are placed in possession of the subjoined latest telegrams. What the Holyhead catastrophe was we don't know. Her Majesty is stated to be in some danger from Tenants.

INTENDED ASSASSINATION OF THE QUEEN.
London, 23rd August, (Nona).—Intelligence received here to-day states that a Fenian has been arrested at Lucerne, in Switzerland, whose intention it was to assassinate the Queen of Victoria. The Prince of Wales has been gazetted Colonel of the Rifle Brigade. Sir Alexander Woodford, Governor of the Chelsea Hospital, has stated that General Merewether and General Russell will be made Knights Commander of the Order of the Star of India. Lord and Lady Farnham were among the victims in the Holyhead catastrophe.

THE NORTH.

(Shanghai Recorder.)
We recently mentioned that the Council of the North China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society had appointed a Committee to arrange the details of the expedition for an examination of the Yellow River, which has for some time been under contemplation. We are glad now to announce that these gentlemen have issued a prospectus and invited subscriptions for the object in question. The amount which will be required is small compared with the importance of the expedition in a commercial and scientific point of view, and especially so when contrasted with the heavy estimates which were made when the matter was first taken into consideration. The whole amount required is about $800, which we have no doubt will be readily subscribed. The plan proposed is to proceed up the Grand Canal from Chinkiang to the point where it is crossed by the Yellow River, and at this place to commence the survey. The subject has been so fully discussed that it is needless to speak at any great length on the present occasion. We can only express our sincere hope that the scheme may meet with the support of the public, and be as successful, as from the energy devoted to its completion it thoroughly deserves.
Mr. J. Morphey, on behalf of Messrs D. Sassoon, Sons & Co., recently brought a charge in the Shanghai Court against three Turkish subjects, of molesting the above-named gentlemen. The three defendants were dressed in a most picturesque costume—long flowing variegated robes held round the waist by large girdles, and on their heads handsome turbans, altogether like pictures in the "Arabian Nights." Two of them were very fair and had a pleasing and mild cast of countenance. The third was less attractive in appearance, and was a cripple in one of his legs. The circumstances connected with the case are most peculiar. It seems that the three Oriental genlemen were Jews from Jerusalem, and had found their way out here through a desire to visit and instruct the Jewish Colony at Kai-fung-fu, and becoming short of funds had for some days been pestering Messrs D. Sassoon for assistance. They behaved with much dignity in Court, and one of them stated his story in a few simple words in the German language. The Court decided to provide for them till the next steamer left for Hongkong, and then to send them on their place.

Considerable apprehension is felt up here lest the successful prosecution of the Missionaries at Yangchow may have a reflected influence upon this place, unless some strong measures be adopted. Some trouble has arisen in Formosa, but steps have been taken to put it down. H. L. M. gunboat Scorpion having been despatched by Veto. Brenier de Montmorand in the 3rd Inst. to Takao to guarantee its presence the safety of the European residents, and, if necessary, to put down any attack that might be made upon them. The Catholic Mission at Formosa is Spanish, and since the Treaty was concluded between Spain and China, has been placed under the protection of that power. In accordance, however, with the wishes and the request of the Spanish Consul, backed by the Consuls of England and Prussia, who at this moment, had no ground available for this object, Veto. Brenier thought it right to take this step. Mr. Gibson, H. B. M. Consul for Prussia, Denmark, and Vice-Consul for France, wrote in August commending that the state of affairs was intolerable; that Europeans cannot go a hundred paces from their houses without danger, and that this resulted not from any ill-will on the part of the people, but from the policy of the Government. This letter was only received at the end of the last month; and notwithstanding that the French have practically no interests in Formosa, the Consul-General very commendably regarded the matter as one of European interest, and influenced by this consideration despatched the Scorpion.

(N. C. Daily News.)
Exploration in the gold districts is continued, with fair success. Auriferous sand is said to have been found very near Chefoo. A good specimen of auriferous quartz has been brought from Kinsan. Experiments in digging are being made. A correspondent writes that the following results of the 5th instant:—"Gold has been found east of 'Look-out' mountain, and some Frenchmen and others have gone down to the new place. There are twenty-three men now at work. The French are mining in earnest, having with them a regular mule train with all the material for work. The mandarins have quite ceased from troubling, and the coast is clear."

CHINKIANG.
(Correspondent of N. C. Daily News.)
Since last adding your file have taken a rather serious and complicated turn here. The disturbances at Yangchow have been followed by riots in the native city of Chinkiang, and the liberal are again assuming the old tone of defiance and intolerance which used to characterise them previous to the war of 1857. Under their direction, the mob of Yangchow have been complimented on their recent triumph over the foreign missionaries. The foreign missionaries, however, and placards have been freely circulated through the city, and rewards have been promised to the popular leaders. Not content with this, however, they have now further decided that the foreigners shall on no account be permitted to return to the city; if they present themselves at the gates they are not to be allowed to enter, but should they by any chance get inside the city walls they are to be instantly set upon and killed. No mercy is to be shown them; the rights of the people must be maintained at any expense, and if only a few of the missionaries are killed, others will fear to follow them.

Such is the present state of affairs at Yangchow! It is a pleasant commentary on the recent recantation of Mr Burlingame at New York: verily this people are a "polite and hospitable people"; they are longing to join the community of the nations, and are anxious for a seat at the "Council Board." "They do not wait to be approached"—to quote further from Mr Burlingame's brilliant oration—"but they extend their hands to us," inviting our merchants and missionaries to come. To the former they say, "we will help you to strike off the shackles from trade, and to the latter, come, "plant the shining cross on every hill and on every valley, for we are hospitable to fair argument!"
The natives here say that the city authorities have really no power at Yangchow, that the head men of the liberal are far more influential than they are and pay not the least attention to their edicts. These literary agitators all quoted, and said, "not one of them having held a lower rank than that of Taotai. In their hands the mob is a blind and reckless rabble, ready to commit any atrocity, or any act of silly vengeance which they may suggest. They are known to have considerable influence, both with the provincial authorities and at the capital, and it is generally felt that each commit a deed of this kind are almost certain to pass unpunished. It is this feeling of immunity from punishment that makes the populace such a powerful engine in their hands; they have always sufficient weight in the Provincial Councils to ruin at any moment a Taotai or Prefect who dared to set in opposition to their wishes; and the people knowing and feeling this, have more faith in them than in their natural leaders."
The names of the headmen who took the lead in the Yangchow outrage are well known, but the difficulty is, how to get at them. The Prefect, even if he wished it, dare not arrest them, and to hope to see them punished by the provincial authorities is utterly futile—unless indeed a very strong and very determined attitude is taken by H. M. representatives. Practically speaking, however, the most effectual way to settle the matter is, to insist upon the Prefect arresting them; and if he declares his inability to do so, to help him, with a file of marines and a gun-boat, and deliver them up to Teeng Kuo-fan. In this way a lesson would be conveyed which these literary gentlemen would probably never forget. It would have more effect in quieting the country, and preventing similar outrages in future, than even the capture of a city. It would teach the Chinese that their literary can not instigate murderous attacks on foreigners, and then laugh in their sleeves at our impotence and imbecility. It would prove to them that if their own Government is unwilling or unable to punish such outrages on the laws of nations, we will not let them pass with impunity. We have to deal with a Government that is powerless to preserve the peace either on shore or on the coast—we have taken one part of this duty completely on ourselves, and we certainly may help them to carry out the other.

What makes the attack on Mr Taylor's party so more unjustifiable is the fact that, during his two months stay in Yangchow, neither he nor any of his party ever once attempted to preach. They did not even pay a single visit except to the Prefect, and Cio's Hsien, when they were obliged to visit the place of residence. The popular prejudices were therefore in no way interfered with, and under such circumstances we can only characterize the outrage as wanton in the extreme. Not a shadow of excuse can be offered in its palliation.

As usually happens to this blessed and well governed country, the natives of Chinkiang have now taken it into their heads to persecute the missionaries. They have been stimulated to this by the success gained at Yangchow; and on the night of the 1st instant a considerable mob, headed by a Tartar mandarin, surrounded the house of the unfortunate man who took his premises to Mr Taylor; and after taking him prisoner to the quarters of the Tartar, gave him a severe thrashing. Last night the riot was renewed, and the Yamen of the Taotai, who is said to be favorable to foreigners, was besieged by several thousand people. The gates were shortly broken open and the rioters made their way through the Yamen, smashing doors, furniture and every thing they could lay hands on. One of the Secretaries of the Taotai was severely flogged, but the mob abstained from offering personal violence to the Taotai himself. The Chinese, who happened to go to the Taotai's residence, reported about a little; it would not be surprising, however, if he himself had been at the bottom of the whole affair. The gates of the city were shut when the disturbance began, and remained so until late this morning. The chief hostility was against the Taotai for treasonable friendships to the missionaries, there was also a determination manifested to keep these latter outside the city, and to prevent them from exiting children there, as they had been accused of doing at Yangchow.

Truly this is a pitiable and deplorable state of things, and if it is not effectually put a stop to, must lead to very serious results. The people of this place are beginning to forget the lesson we gave them in 1842. They look upon our forbearance as weakness, and they are daily becoming more aggressive. It devolves upon us in the interests of peace to undeceive them.

Her Majesty's Consul, Mr Medhurst, arrived here on Monday morning, and is now waiting the arrival of the Rinaldo to proceed to Yangchow. His presence has been already productive of a considerable amount of good in settling some local matters inside the city of Chinkiang connected with Mr Taylor's Mission.

TIEN-TSIN.

In the Peking Gazette of the 20th inst., an Imperial edict appears, promulgating the news that the Imperial forces in the province of Chihli, had put down the rebels existing in this province for several months past, the Imperial forces becoming masters of the country lately occupied by the rebels, on the 16th inst. Le-jung-chang (known in the south to foreigners as Le Footen) and Ying-hai Governor of Anhui, and in command of forces in this province, memorialized the Throne that the Imperial armies in Chihli had attacked and fought the rebel forces from the 8th instant to the 16th instant, during which period numbers of the rebel leaders, including Chang-kwie, son of the late rebel chief Chang-tung-yu, had been killed, and from 3,000 to 4,000 of their old rebel followers (meaning I suppose "long haired men") had been destroyed; that Chang-tung-yu, the chief of the rebels, had destroyed himself by drowning. His Majesty (meaning the Emperor) has commanded Le-jung-chang to search for the corpse of Chang-tung-yu, and find it, to make sure that he actually has destroyed himself, and that he has not escaped to some other part of the country. His Majesty has commanded Le-jung-chang to again visit the Yellow Jacket, and has also bestowed on him his former honors held before he was lately degraded. His Majesty has also bestowed on several other high commanders the honors they have before been lately degraded; and His Majesty orders that when order has been restored to the whole province he will bestow further honors and make promotions as a reward for the gallant services against the rebels.

Last evening the mandarin in the Tientsin Yamen received private letters from Peking, acquainting them that the Peking Government had issued commands promoting his Excellency Ching-how—the superior intendant of the foreign trade of the Three Northern ports, vice president of the Board of War, and controller of munitions of war on the coast for the Northern provinces etc., to be Vice-Governor of the young Emperor during his minority, elevating him to the first rank of Mandarin, and granting him the privilege of wearing the double-eyed peacock's feather. He will, notwithstanding these honors, still remain at Tientsin in charge of the foreign affairs at the three Northern ports.

Late on the evening of the 28th instant, the United States war vessel Mannet, Capt. Cushing, anchored off the settlement; and we understood that it was the intention of Captain Cushing to remain at this station for some months. Admiral Rowen, the United States Naval Commander-in-chief, is looked for soon on a visit to this port and Peking. We must candidly own that the American navy is now giving its full share of protection to this port. A Russian man-of-war is expected daily, and we understand she will have during winter, as the British gun-boat Dove did last winter, to send protection to the residents during the closed season. The southern junks are beginning to collect at the Kokoo anchorage; but up to the present moment they have given no trouble to foreign vessels when coming up or going down this river, as they were in the habit of doing last year. Owing to the excellent regulations made by the Customs authorities this year, I do not fear any interruption to the foreign craft this season.

The millet crops are being gathered in spots where the soil is good, and the yield is deemed very large. All the crops are looking very promising, and everything tends to lead us to expect that we shall see a harvest about the average of the late past years.

JAPAN.

The Japan Gazette gives the following additional items:—

On the 28th August, the Representative of the Netherlands applied to the Saibansho for an escort to accompany him to Yedo. The Governor of Kanagawa most earnestly requested him to postpone his visit for some days, as the city was in a very disturbed state, on account of the arrival of large bodies of troops belonging to the South who were to march to Shiracawa. It appears that these troops are behaving in so disorderly a manner, as to cause great anxiety to the Government itself. The U. S. Minister has also foregone an intended visit to Yedo on similar grounds.

On the 30th, a conference was to have taken place at the castle of Yedo, between some high dignitaries of the Mikado's court, the Prince of Hosokawa and some high officials of the ex Tycoon.

All the Japanese newspapers published in Yedo are said to have been stopped by the Kanagawa government some weeks ago. Kinsui, (once Tokugawa), whose troops were lately in Yokohama, is said to be going home. It is reported that two steamers were chartered to take them, and that one of the steamers belongs to the P. M. S. S. Co.; it is named the Costa Rica; and contracted to convey men from Yedo to Tomo.

It is an undoubted fact, that the Shin Kangawa—the Northerners—have reached Yokohama half way between Otawara and Utsunomiya, which latter place is just ten ri from Yedo. The whole country round Yokohama is occupied by Kanagawa's troops, as there is a strong conviction that Aizu will pass this way to Yedo. At Kanagawa there are 60 soldiers and two field pieces; the same at Kamakura and other principal places. It is asserted that the Shin Mikado has sent to his nephew at Kioto, peremptorily ordering him to resign within a month from the 1st of 7th moon, Japanese. Also, that he has ordered Asagawa Mia Sama now in Yedo, to return to Kioto and never attempt to disobey his orders. Finally, that he has raised the revenue of Prince of Aizu from 28,000 kokus to 70,000.

From Hakodate we (Express) learn that the American steamer Kanga No-kami, belonging to Byron Binnington, Esq., of Shanghai, has at last been duly sold, her nominal purchaser being the Prince of Akiwa, although all the details were arranged by the Custom House people. Her price is 67,000 Rios, or about $90,000, half paid down in cash and half on a short credit.

APPEARANCE OF A SUSPICIOUS SHIP—A DREADFUL TRAGEDY PROBABLE.

We take the following from the Japan Times of Sept. 5:—

On the night of the 25th ulto. arrived the Sunrise from Hakodate, with news of the occurrence there of a singular and somewhat mysterious circumstance. On the 19th inst. a foreign-built barque, with a full poop, and of from 350 to 400 tons, came into that harbour from Nambu, whence she had been brought by Japanese pilots. She was an old ship and in a very dilapidated condition, top-gallant masts gone, and all rigging in disorder and disrepair. She had only two boats. No name, ship's papers nor other means of identification were discoverable. Off the quarter the name had been torn and from the boats remaining, it had also been erased. On one of the bells was the name "Bertha," but this, under the circumstance of the evident intention to conceal her identity, can hardly be regarded as the name of the barque, though it may afford a clue to her recognition should the sale of such a bell be traced. On board were forty-two Chinamen, common coolies, not sailors, all professing ignorance of the English language. Through a Cantonese interpreter, the account of the men on board was made out to be that the vessel was Chinese-owned, that she had left Macao about 70 days previously for Foochow, with an European captain and officers, to the number of five, and with fifty Chinese sailors, of whom they were the remainder, eight having died. The Europeans, they said, had abandoned the ship during a gale of wind, taking with them two boats, the davits for which stood empty. (From another source of information, we are told that they reported themselves as having left Macao for Lima in February or March. It is hardly necessary to say that this statement was received with incredulity. A thorough examination of ship and crew was proceeding when the Sunrise left Hakodate on the 22nd inst., and the following are the discoveries which had then been made. Several of the men had coolie contracts, numbered irregularly, the highest number being 209. They were written in Spanish and were made out for the Italian barque Providence. Their dates were from May to July, 1867. Many articles of European make were found; a trunk nearly new, with canvas cover marked Lima, Peru, such as might belong to a supercargo; some children's boots, a carpet stained with blood, and a quantity of European clothing of good quality, shirts, gusseted trousers etc. The Chinamen were using European cooking utensils and knives and forks, while of ordinary Chinese coolies' cooking pots very few were found. In the hold was a quantity of hoop iron, some gunny bags and a little flour. There was no evidence whatever of the presence on board of any Chinaman above the lowest class—no Chinese fittings in the cabin, such as a Chinese Captain's owner, or experience would have, nor any Chinese clothes of value. The floor of the cabin had evidently been lately scraped.

During the examination it was accidentally discovered that among the forty-two men were a couple of interpreters, though when the vessel was first boarded, all pretended to be quite ignorant of any language but their own, except one who spoke a little pidgin English. These two were remarked to be laughing together at some observations made in English in their presence, and on being taxed with the fact that they understood what was said, acknowledged that they were interpreters and when the Sunrise left, were assisting in the examination, under check of the Cantonese originally acting for the authorities.

We shall receive before we write again no doubt, further information which may clear up the mystery from this affair. Forty-two men will hardly keep a secret, if there be one which would hang any of them; for men hate to betray when they fear to be betrayed, and if the case be properly conducted, there should be little difficulty in detecting the evidence of some against the rest. Of course the hypothesis is that a dreadful crime, or perhaps an act of that rule justice which is called revenge, has been committed. (These men may be the survivors of some frightful struggle, like those of which too many Macao coolies have been the scene. Their own statement of the European crew deserting them must be of course rejected at once. Five men would not take away two boats, nor would European sailors abandon a ship in a gale of wind which had suffered so little as this. Then the Chinamen are not sailors. They helplessly drifted to the coast near Nambu and were taken up to Hakodate by Japanese pilots. The vessel and her rigging was in such a state as no sailor would have allowed them to go to, and altogether, she had the appearance of a vessel left, far at sea, in charge of an ignorant set of landmen, and which had by accident of currents and winds drifted to a shore. The presence of a quality of European clothes and other articles unaccounted for and certainly not likely to be on board a Chinese-owned ship also makes against the crew's story, as do also the coolie contract papers. Some seamen's accounts have also been found, made out in Italian, and the supposition respecting the vessel in Hakodate, a natural one enough—is that she is the Providence, that she left Macao for some port on the West coast of America some time about July 1867 with at least three hundred coolies on board. That the passengers rose upon the crew, overpowered them and killed them all, losing doubtless a number of their own force in the struggle and afterwards from wounds. That, ignorant of navigation, they steered the ship back to the east, having noted the steering to have been always westerly; but, set up by currents, struck the coast of Japan instead of China. The absence of the two boats may be accounted for either by supposing that part of the Chinamen preferred taking their chance in them, or that they were lost in bad weather. What has to be discovered in China is the recent existence of such a ship as the Providence and when and under what circumstances she left the China seas.

ENGLAND OWING £2,500,000 TO FRANCE.

The Times Paris correspondent says:—"It is desirable to learn what real foundation there is for the claim of a large sum of money said to be due for many years past by the English to the French Government. Seven years ago the subject was brought forward in the French Chamber by M. Belmontet, but as M. Belmontet is more of a poet than a financier, it was thought he was dealing in fiction. He has, however, since then reverted to the subject more than once, as well as another member of the House, and people conclude there must be something in it. It is now treated in the Opinion Nationale by one of its principal writers, M. Ducloux. It appears, on his showing, that the French Government paid to the English Government, in 1818, a sum of 130,000,000 (£5,200,000) on account of indemnities claimed by British subjects for losses they had sustained during the war with the Empire; and that this sum was, in virtue of the Convention of 1815, at first accepted, as it was meant, in lieu of all demands. There was, however, a second arrangement concluded in 1818; to the effect that, if the 130 millions were found insufficient to indemnify the claimants, the French Government would pay the difference; but it was at the same time understood that if the sum was more than was required for that purpose, the remainder should be handed over to the French Government. Now, M. Ducloux asserts, as a notorious fact, that the British subjects who claimed indemnity for losses during the war have received only 65 millions; and that the other 65 millions were spent in building Buckingham House, the residence of the English Sovereigns. He does not know whether the Government of the Restoration demanded the restitution of that sum; but had it done so, the English Government would probably have answered, "Wait till the whole of the claims are sent in; there may be some outstanding. It is no matter to you what we make of the money in the meantime, we shall settle that afterwards." The last claim for indemnity was that of the Baron de Bode, which was disposed of by the House of Commons in 1861; and it is precisely at that date that M. Belmontet first moved the question of restitution. Consequently, prescription, could it be alleged by Government against another, cannot be pleaded here. The matter will again be brought forward by M. Belmontet, supported by M. Berryer, Martel, "neel, and other deputies of the Majority, before the Legislative Body. M. Ducloux recommends that in the negotiations about to be opened all acrimonious feeling should be avoided. This is not a national affair; and he feels no such confidence in the honesty and spirit of justice of the English people that he should be quite willing to leave it to the decision of an English jury taken from both Houses of Parliament. He concludes—"Let us act as we acted at Pontony; and if the English jury we propose plead prescription there is no more to be said. All that we ask is that the Government of M. Belmontet and Martel should consent to submit the Government in order that it should be carried out."

TO SLEEP LIKE A TOP.—Poor Curran assuredly derived our top from the French toupie—the humming-top; nothing to do with the whip-top or salot. A few nights before his death the doctor administered a draught which "should make him sleep like a top." "What! turn about all night?" said the worn-out patient.—Notes and Queries.

NOT A PENNY IN THE WORLD.—"My friend," said a seedy parson, an acquaintance at the ferry, "I wish you would lend me two pence to cross the ferry. I ain't got a penny in the world." "Well, I would like to know," was the reply, "what difference it makes to a man who hasn't got a penny in the world which side of the river he is on?"

THE HERO OF THE HUNBER.—The Eastern Morning News records the funeral, at Hull, of John Ellertson, "The Hero of the Hunber," and says it may be questioned whether his career has any individual parallel in the world's history. The saving of a party of forty lives from drowning during sixty-one years' existence could not fail to be exalted to the position of a great hero, and worship which was paid to him was assumed an exaggerated form, though it was intense and abiding. He bore his honors meekly, and his funeral parade of the man—unpretending, simple, earnest. The highest tribute which could be paid to departed worth was accorded to the memory of the hero of the Hunber. "Thousands of his fellow-townsmen followed the funeral on its way to the cemetery."
